

Selling ecological goods verbs of sensation practice

Choose one of the things below and work together to imagine a better version than what presently exists. Decide on its advantages and compare it to other products, including how green it is. You can compare to non-ecological goods and/ or current ecological products.

Useful phrases for describing new products

It's similar to... but it looks/ smells/ sounds/ feels/ tastes (like)...

It looks/ smells/ sounds/ feels/ tastes (like)...but it...

It looks/ smells/ sounds/ feels/ tastes as good as... but it...

It looks/ smells/ sounds/ feels/ tastes better than... and also...

It's better than... because it looks/ smells/ sounds/ feels/ tastes (like)...

It... but it still looks/ smells/ sounds/ feels/ tastes (like)...

Useful questions for asking about new products

What does it taste like/ look like/ smell like/ feel like/ sound like?

Does it look/ sound/ smell/ feel/ taste (like/ as good as/ better than)...

air conditioner

bin/ trash can

car

clothing

electronics

gas(oline)/ petrol

lighting (light bulb, etc)

materials

packaging

plant

power station

sporting venue

transport

animal

building

chemical

countryside

food

green space

lorry/ truck

metal

personal grooming product

plastic

reading material

toilet paper

water

battery

bus

cleaning products

drink

furniture

heating

make up

natural resources

power

sporting equipment

town

Change groups and describe your new product until your partner agrees to buy that product or until you give up trying to persuade them. Then switch roles and do the same.

Verbs of sensation with and without like as a preposition grammar presentation

What is wrong with these questions? Why are they wrong?

It looks like beautiful. X

It sounds a normal sports car. X